I am opposed to the Electric Transmission Corridor that is being planned to cross Pennsylvania. Pennsylvanians will NOT benefit from this taking of their land; only corporations will. The electricity will serve New York City and its suburbs, including New Jersey.

My main concern is the habitat of numerous species of wildlife that will be adversely affected by the corridor.

This comment period is entirely too short for a project that has such enduring, indeed permanent, consequences.

Thank you,

Judith C. Marvin

I am writing to express my opposition to the recently announced draft Mid-Atlantic Area National Interest Electric Transmission Corridor (NIETC) designation. I feel the designation of transmission corridors is inappropriate for the following reasons:

1. The standpoint taken in the National Electric Transmission Congestion Study (USDoE, 2006) is biased because it focuses almost entirely on the expansion of transmission capacity from large coal-fired power generation plants located in West Virginia, Ohio, and western Pennsylvania, miles away from the critical congestion areas on the east coast. I am concerned that the DoE has made very little attempt to formulate a national energy policy that would mandate energy solutions which promote sustainability and environmental stewardship. Instead, the proposed NEITC designation is biased toward the continued use of outdated, dirty technology which is the responsible for western Pennsylvania's rank as one of the worst in terms of air pollution. These coal-fired power plants are the single biggest factor responsible for greenhouse gases which are causing global warming. At a time when the rest of the world is working towards reducing greenhouse gases, a policy that focuses primarily on increasing transmission capacity simply adds to the problem of global warming.
2. The proposed NEITC designation is also biased because the outcome of focusing on power generation plants located miles away from high-demand areas necessitates a transmission system which relies on the use of high voltage transmission lines to carry electricity from West Virginia, Ohio, and western Pennsylvania to areas of high-demand. These high voltage transmission lines also carry tremendous risks for the people, animals, and wildlife living nearby them. A study commissioned by the California Public Utilities Commission and undertaken by epidemiologists at the California Department of Health Services (2002) reviewed over 400 scientific research studies on the health impact of electro-magnetic fields (EMFs), virtually everything that has been published on this topic. The epidemiologists concluded that the scientific evidence does show that exposure to EMFs increases the risk of childhood leukemia, adult leukemia and adult brain cancer. They also said that, although some evidence already exists, more studies are needed to firmly conclude that EMFs increase the risk of childhood brain cancer, breast cancer, miscarriage, Lou Gehrig's disease, Alzheimer's, heart disease and suicide (through the effect of EMFs on melatonin suppression and its impact on depression). Those conclusions are surely enough to make you pause. Our health concerns are not "parochial" as Mr. Bodman has suggested. A far more appropriate approach would be to find energy solutions which are more socially and environmentally responsible. In other words, put the health and welfare of people and the environment first rather than catering to the interests of the for-profit utility industry.
3. The proposed NEITC designation also pre-empts the state's authority over the approval or rejection of utility projects. For example, a project rejected by the Pennsylvania Utility Commission could be approved by the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission (FERC). I feel strongly that the final determination on whether a proposed power line is in the public interest should be made at the state and local levels and not by the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission.

4. What eminent domain law would apply to condemning private property for the siting of a high voltage power line approved by FERC? It is unclear what protections would apply for nonfederal property falling within a corridor. Wetlands, agricultural land preserved under conservation easements, agricultural and forest reserve land preserved under the Clean and Green Program, historic battlefields, historic land and places, school yards, and all commercial and residential private property falling within a national corridor could be subject to taking by the federal government to build new power lines.
5. Finally, the NEITC designations make a mockery of democracy. Citizens have been given a small fraction of the consideration given to the energy industry. The congestion study highlights the fact that DoE has numerous, extensive meetings with energy companies and their representatives over a period of several years, yet the more than 55 million citizens living within the proposed corridors have been offered only a handful of public meetings and 60 days in which to comment on the proposals.

Thank you for this small opportunity to express my opposition to the proposed NEITC designations. With so much uncertainty about the potential impacts of such a plan the only responsible course of action is to delay the final designation of any corridor for a minimum of one year, preferably longer. This would allow time for further (unbiased, independent) studies to be conducted and for citizens and local officials to be educated and informed about the issues at stake. In the end, I feel this will lead to an energy policy that is more socially and environmentally responsible.

Sullivan, Robert G.

It would be a big mistake to tear down many historical buildings in order to put this electric line in. In our village of Greene, NY alone there would have to be removed many very real historical sights that is a very important part of our villages development from the beginning. There are only a few seed companies in the world and we have one of them, The Page Seed Co. It would have to be torn down. There are also a number more. This is not exceptable to destroy history. The electric line is a very real health hazard to peoples lives. To go through populated areas, such as villages, it would expose many people who live there. Go some where, where there isn't populated areas and where you don't have to tear down old buildings.

The Desert National Wildlife Refuge is located one hour north of Las Vegas, and it is less than 30 minutes from my home. It is full of bighorn sheep, desert tortoise, Las Vegas bear poppies, Las Vegas buckwheat all protected species. Wherever there is a seep of water, wildlife thrives in this arid Mojave Desert. Encompassing more than 1.5 million acres and six mountain ranges, the Desert National Wildlife Refuge is the largest wildlife refuge in the lower 48 states, as well as one of the wildest places left in the nation. Desert plants and animals, waters and soils, need that level of protection, even more so with encroaching urbanization and population pressure.

The Desert NWR is threatened by construction of a massive energy corridor system. These corridors would disrupt the wildlife and contradict the concept of a refuge. This misguided plan imperils the desert bighorn sheep for which the refuge was created, as well as the scenic vistas of the landscape. The Desert NWR is for sheep and poppies, not pipelines and power lines.

Established in 1936 to protect and enhance the decimated desert bighorn sheep population, this refuge is no place to construct power lines and risky pipelines. The presence of such infrastructure damages habitat and introduces the devastating risk of pipeline leaks and other disasters.

The purpose of a wildlife refuge is to safeguard the habitat of the animals that make it their home. There is no way to argue that stringing power lines up and building oil and gas pipelines through the refuge protects and enhances the wildlife. Take a moment and remind the Department of Energy that a wildlife refuge is for animals, not energy development.

Thank you

as a resident of southern nevada i am distressed to hear of this proposed corridor. one of the things that makes the las vegas valley livable is the fact that there are beautiful untouched desert areas surrounding the valley. with all of the residential/commercial construction in the valley it is important to keep the surrounding areas untouched for all of the species of plants and animals that that live in southern nevada and the mojave desert.

The NYRI proposed program is clearly a bad idea. Why? 1.) Because this would subject an entire township to eminent domain, and I take it personally as my sister is a land owner in this township, 2.) irreparable damage to a river ecosystem. Once the river is compromised, it will leave fewer and fewer rivers and their ecosystems intact in our nation that is sworn to protect such wetlands and rivers; and especially in the NYRI proposed area, 3.) in this case the benefits would NOT outweigh the consequences: only a few stand to profit at the expense of many others, 4.) I am currently stationed on the island of Oahu, Honolulu County, Hawaii--you'd best believe this nonsense would NOT happen here because legislators and lawmakers understand the full depth and purity of environmental protection--what exactly are NY lawmakers NOT understanding?
Very respectfully,

Jonathan D. Eisenberg, OSC(SW/AW, USN

It is an outrage that National Parks, animal refuges, old growth forests and the like are being destroyed at the whims of 'energy'. Why can't these corridors be run along railroad lines, freeways or highways? It would have the double benefit of saving animal sanctuaries and saving money as these areas already have cleared land.

We are tired of businesses making profit off of our public lands and want what we have preserved!

Thank you for condiering my comments.

I strongly urge the rejection of approving the corridor through the Desert National Wildlife Range. They should use ant existing corridors or divert around it. There is a price to pay for our ever increasing consumption of energy & that price should be passed on to the consumer, not foisted upon the wildlife that has been given only the relatively meager areas that we have left them. The purpose of the wildlife refuge is to allow the wildlife to remain undisturbed in that area.

Thank you,

Jeff Dean

Like millions of other Americans, my husband and I looked for the beauty and peace for our young family by buying several acres in the suburbs and building a beautiful home to watch the sunset and deer from our back deck. Our two children, a boy and a girl, are, of course, our most precious possessions and protecting their well being our greatest priority. Who could imagine that a legislative act of Congress that almost nobody knows about could threaten the tranquility of our lives and, perhaps, the health of our children

Utilities have pointed to the NIETC as a way to protect our national security. Unfortunately, like many other actions taken in recent years since 9-11, we have to ask whether allowing the electric companies to build new transmission lines wherever they want, actually protects our security or endangers it; whether these new lines will actually serve a national security and national energy purpose or simply serve as a shortcut for the electric companies to add more profit to their bottom lines while endangering the environment and the health of our children.

When Congress passed the NIETC provision, it failed to include any environmental protections. By guaranteeing that any new transmission line would receive a guaranteed financial return, the Federal Government assured the use of cheap dirty coal as a means to power future energy consumption. This is one of the most critical issues America and the world faces if we are going to mitigate the danger of global warming. Hopefully, now that the Supreme Court has ruled that the EPA CAN regulate CO2 emissions, serious steps should be taken towards that goal. The more we use coal, the more green house gases are produced, the warmer our summers will to become, the more we will need to offset the electricity needed for those peak days, the more transmission lines we will need, and so on. We will be the dog chasing its tail until it finally drops dead from exhaustion.

On April 26, Congressmen Tom Davis convened a hearing regarding the serious negative impacts of an NIET Corridor, the very next day, April 27, the Department of Energy (DOE) announced the release of a draft Mid-Atlantic NIET Corridor affecting millions of Americans. This corridor runs through eight states, 202 counties, and the District of Columbia. The corridor could affect one third of the state of Virginia alone. DOE has given citizens only 18 days to prepare for the hearing on May 15th at the Doubletree hotel in Arlington There has been NO formal public notification and no REAL transparency within this entire process. The question has to be asked. Who formulated this transmission policy and why is it being steamrolled ahead in spite of concerns of Congressmen and Senators, Governors in the affected states, local county leadership , and thousands of citizens due to its potential adverse affects on so many people. Who is watching out for citizens we asking?

When asked, DOE reps will tell you that they don't require transmission lines as the main mode of energy transportation, but let us be real, it IS called the National Interest Electric TRANSMISSION Corridor. A high level DOE official, who asked to remain anonymous, finally became so worn down by my questions regarding why ONLY new transmission lines had a guaranteed federal financial return that he finally said, "I didn't write this legislation, congressional staffers did, ask THEM why they did not put in incentives for conservation or renewable energy". When I pressed him regarding the use of dirty coal and that it is responsible for 40% of co2 emissions, he said he agreed with me. There was NO policy within the DOE to reduce green house gasses. He said " I was preaching to the converted" and encouraged me to express my views at the upcoming hearing.

Who will benefit the most from this NIET Corridor? The national security of the United States or the management and stockholders of the electric companies. Congress needs to take a second look at this potential monster before it is totally out of control. Energy independence and security is, of course, one of our highest priorities. But there are better ways to ensure a reliable and secure electric grid – energy efficiency, energy conservation, new technology, and distributed generation – and unlike transmission lines, these alternatives don't come at the expense of the natural beauty of a world that we hold in trust for the future well being of the next generation and, hopefully, many generations to come. I urge the Department of Energy to be ethical, courageous and above all, FAIR, and deny these designations of corridors. This is a NEW era, and citizens are paying attention, not simply for their property rights, but for the future of their children and generations yet born. I imagine these comments are probably not even read by anyone of significance, but I want MY children to be able to look back and know their mother tried to change the course of a failed energy policy. What will YOUR children say about you?

I am writing to plead to your organization to avoid using any land in the Desert National Wildlife Refuge for the Southwest Area energy corridor. I feel that an energy corridor goes against the spirit and intent of a wildlife refuge. Please consider alternatives.

I strongly oppose the establishment of these transmission corridors for the following reasons:

1. A centralized power grid is susceptible to natural disasters and terrorist attacks.
2. The corridors will increase our dependence on dirty coal power and discourage conservation by keeping electricity prices unnecessarily low, hastening global warming.
3. The corridors will have adverse environmental impacts.

I am strongly opposed to this designation. Please consider using new technology such as the 3M products that can be added to existing towers such as Marcy South when and if we truly need to upgrade the system. This would be a logical plan. Until such time as it is truly necessary, and I do not for one minute think that it is needed at this time- studies have shown that to be true, the focus should be on CONSERVATION and spending time and money to find cost effective methods to find new alternatives. The landscape across this beautiful country is already marred by these prehistoric towers. Placing them underground is not a solution either. The health problems that have been proven on the international level should be enough to have any reasonable country to look towards conservation programs and solar technology and improvements in wind power etc. rather than adding to the problem. I strongly suspect that the increase in Autism that is prevalent in this area has a relationship to Marcy South and that will cost the county a lot of money to provide lifelong care for them. I thought this was a reasonable, logical country.

If windmills or wave generated power were used near the ocean there would be less need for destroying so many peoples health and homes with these huge power lines. The energy source would be closer to the big cities(NYC) that refuse to conserve and expect other areas to give up health and resources so they will have more of what they say they need.

Why are public utilities spending billions of of ratepayer money to build a sets of power lines to coal fired plants in WV? These towers are clearly designed to last 50 years - and whose sole purpose is to transmit coal fired power! With all the global warming controversy, are we really going to be building 50+ year infrastructure to support further use of coal until 2060+?

Wouldn't this money be better spent on alternative methods of localized power generation? Or build out a bunch of local and EXPENSIVE natural gas fired generation plants - conversation is not going to happen until a KWH gets into the .30 or .40 per hour.

Our Federal Government MUST protect us from money making organizations like NYRI. Those of us who will be most effected by this proposition, will be the losers. Our state needs to learn how to conserve, not build huge, monster poles to carry electricity to places like NYC where people do not conserve. NYRI wants to make money. We want to preserve our land, historic sites, health, and find ways to have everyy without the cost of human life and property. We need the Federal government to hear us now! Stop being so blinded by the "idea" and look at the outcome for many years to come. Robin C. Leinbach

Dear Sir or Madam:

Let me start by saying: I realize that for the most part the DOE could care less about our rural homes and our views, this was show by the two cities you chose to hold your public meetings concerning the NYRI project. Rochester 2+ hours from the nearest proposed transmission line(s) and NYC the place that will receive this power at the expense of upstate NY.

Not one meeting was scheduled along the "Corridor". I am simply writing to find out your reasoning for not having any meetings along the proposed NYRI route.

What was your reasoning?
Sincerely

TO: The Office of Electricity Delivery and Energy Reliability, OE-20
U.S. Department of Energy

Ladies/Gentlemen:

I am a resident of the Town of Cohecton, New York, which lies in the designated path along the upper Delaware River upon which New York Regional Interconnect hopes to build a gargantuan power line, provided it is granted federal approvals, over strong state objections, to do so. The line will carry vast quantities of electric current generated in and around Utica, New York, through unspoiled river areas and wetlands, part of the way directly adjacent to a 30-inch (or is it 45 inches?) gas pipeline presently being relaid underground by the Millennium pipeline, in order to deliver more power to New York City and environs.

I have already heard many cogent arguments as to why such application by NYRI must be denied. Among them:

(1) NO PRESENT NEED. An independent study conducted by an entity (NYISO) charged with monitoring New York's power grid concluded less than a year ago that there will be no need for additional power sources to New York City and Long Island prior to 2016; thus there is no urgency and no cause for federal concern .

(2) INEFFICIENCY AND HIGH COST TO CONSUMERS. The proposed technology is less advanced than other technology already being developed in the state; the 200-mile portage is inefficient and therefore unlikely to reduce electric costs for its downstate beneficiaries as boasted; it has been asserted that some 20% of the power will be lost, and NYRI will not be picking up the tab for the loss.

(3) DANGERS AND HEALTH HAZARDS ALONG THE ROUTE. Inhabited zones along NYRI's path may experience the kinds of health problems for which numerous studies have already laid the blame on high-voltage overhead power lines. Those communities along the joint gas-electric easement will face the further menace of a massive combustion accident.

(4) DESPOLIATION OF NATURE AND LOCAL ECONOMIES ALONG THE ROUTE. An army of high voltage towers will unquestionably interfere with wildlife habitats and blight the upstate landscape, and thus the ecotourism upon which many of our communities rely. The net effect upon the local population will be to reduce property values, increase local energy costs (as testified by NYRI itself), cripple the tourist industry, ravage our lovely landscape, and kill off one of the few remaining wild and scenic rivers in this country.

Well, I live along the route. In fact, the barn that I have been slowly converting for the past 20 years for the enjoyment of my retirement years is within 1000 feet of the Millennium Pipeline, placing me and my neighbors at special risk, on top of the aforementioned losses. And for what? I would really like an answer to that question.

I'd also like to add my own two cents. I am not a Constitutional lawyer, but I do seem to recall that there are historic limitations upon the federal government under the commerce clause to pre-empt state action in matters that are purely intra-state. The corridor designations under the 2005 Energy Act may or may not be in the national interest. But proceeding from there to granting rights, as NYRI plans to request of the DOE, to develop an electricity project that is neither interstate nor a link in a presently planned interstate power system, is a quantum leap that smacks of unconstitutional meddling in state affairs. I would argue that DOE is without jurisdiction to entertain NYRI's proposal and that federal eminent domain law may not be applied in this situation.

Thank you for your attention.

I am strongly Opposed to the Mid-Atlantic corridor. It is directly impacting my community, and in no way benefits the community. I don't believe that the federal government should be involved in a state matter either, they already interfere in too many state related issues and have a poor performance record for doing what is in the best interest of the common people. The people who need this energy should seek alternatives that impact them directly and not other unwilling communities.

On behalf of the Stafford County, Virginia Board of Supervisors, I am attaching Resolution R07-273, adopted by the Board on June 19, 2007. The Resolution expresses the Board's opposition to the designation of the Mid-Atlantic Area National Corridor without meaningful consultation with the Commonwealth of Virginia and affected localities, and prior to the completion of a full environmental review to determine the impacts of the legislation.

Thank you for your consideration of this issue, and for the opportunity to provide input regarding this very important matter to Stafford County.

Sincerely,
Jack R. Cavalier

On motion of Mr. Gibbons, seconded by Mr. Milde, which carried by a vote of 7 to 0, the following was adopted:

A RESOLUTION EXPRESSING OPPOSITION TO THE PROPOSED
DESIGNATION OF A NATIONAL INTEREST ELECTRIC TRANSMISSION
CORRIDOR BY THE SECRETARY OF ENERGY

WHEREAS, the United States Department of Energy has released its National Electric Transmission Congestion Study which identifies areas of the Nation experiencing transmission congestion as required by the Energy Policy Act of 2005 (the Act); and

WHEREAS, as a result of the study, the Secretary of Energy is proposing to designate the Atlantic coastal area from metropolitan New York through the Northern Virginia area as a National Interest Electric Transmission Corridor (National Corridor); and

WHEREAS, this proposed Corridor includes Stafford County; and

WHEREAS, the Act stipulates that the Secretary of Energy consult with affected states in conducting a study of electric transmission congestion prior to the designation of National Corridors; and

WHEREAS, it is the understanding of the Board that the Commonwealth of Virginia was not consulted in the preparation of the Congestion Study released by the Department in September 2006; and

NOW, THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED by the Stafford County Board of Supervisors on this the 19th day of June, 2007, that the Board be and it hereby does express its opposition to the designation of a National Interest Electric Transmission Corridor along the Atlantic coastal area from metropolitan New York southward through Northern Virginia and Stafford County without consultation with the Commonwealth of Virginia and affected localities, and prior to the completion of a full environmental review to determine the impacts of the designation; and

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED that a copy of this resolution be transmitted to the Department of Energy as part of its public comment process, the Governor of Virginia and the members of Congress representing Stafford County so that all may be apprised of the sense of the Board on this matter.

As someone who lives in southern Nevada and who has had the good fortune to have hiked through the Desert National Wildlife Refuge many, many times, I am outraged at the proposal to run a power corridor through the Refuge. I cannot believe this got past the planning stage. This project should be shelved immediately. These wildlife sanctuaries should be inviolate.

The issue at hand here is the overpopulation of the desert southwest by people. The need for more energy to feed our expanding population is not the fault of the animals who called this area home long before we did. They should not have to pay the price for our poor regional planning.

A more appropriate plan would be for less people here, more in harmony with the ability of the local ecology to support and sustain. I know this is idealistic. Still, one can hope.

Wildlife refuges exist for wildlife, not people. Keep the refuge free from any unnecessary urban blight like powerlines. I thank you for taking the time to receive my comments.

The corridor designation does nothing to address proper training and management of power transfer and overload prevention, both of which contributed to recent blackouts in NY metropolitan regions, not lack of additional power. Lack of personnel training and poor management will result in more black start failures. The 2005 Energy Act has and will result in more consumer cost and more energy profits as deregulation and privatization continue to drive this economic model. I also find fault with the obvious legislation-by-lobbyist trend that places profit and capitalism above democracy. Personally, our family owns property, residential and commercial, along the NYRI corridor that will adversely affect our lives and businesses. The current disregard for our region is akin to drawing a moustache on Mona Lisa and thinking no one will notice, we notice.

As a land conservancy that works in the region covered by the Mid-Atlantic NIETC, Natural Lands Trust has a number of concerns about issues surrounding NIETC designations. First, we are concerned that the proposed designations do not specifically protect National Parks, historic sites, and other environmental resources and community resources that are protected as federal, state, and local priorities.

We are also concerned that NIETC designations give utilities applying for a permit to construct an interstate line the power to circumvent the state's regulatory authority and may also give utilities access to federal eminent domain, allowing them to condemn private property and public resources.

We feel there are a number of important issues surrounding NIETC designations that have not been addressed. Rushing the NIETCs through now without finishing the appropriate debate can do substantial damage.

Specifically, these proposals:

- Put at risk decades of important land conservation achievements across much of Pennsylvania and the other Mid-Atlantic states;
- Threaten thousands of properties that have been protected as open space with public funds from local, county, state and federal agencies, raising the specter that public monies will have been spent to protect land deemed important according to carefully developed public criteria only to be condemned by private interests;
- Threaten lands that have been protected by conservation easements that have met criteria established by the Internal Revenue Code;

- May destroy the integrity of communities and scenic, historic and natural landscapes including parks, battlefields, Important Bird Areas, Important Mammal Areas, Rare, Threatened and Endangered Species habitats, and protected open spaces;
- Undercut existing federal law such as the National Environmental Policy Act, the Endangered Species Act, and the National Historic Preservation Act by imposing new processes and procedures inconsistent with those laws;
- Threaten the integrity of the federally designated Highlands Region in Pennsylvania, New Jersey and New York
- Impose on the states an unprecedented use of federal eminent domain;
- Strip the Pennsylvania General Assembly and the PUC, as well as the corresponding bodies in other states, of any meaningful control over the abuse of eminent domain and consideration of legitimate local concerns;
- Negate state environmental and energy policy decisions;
- Contribute to greenhouse gas emissions and exacerbate the threats of global warming;
- Promote increased coal-burning and associated emissions by older, dirtier plants to our west, putting the health of everyone but especially our children and the elderly at greater risk; and
- Commit our region to a course of action which fails to adequately consider lower cost, non-polluting solutions and lower impact non-transmission alternatives.

Finally, Natural Lands Trust owns, manages or holds conservation easements on over 200 properties comprising about 30,000 acres in the affected counties primarily in Pennsylvania and New Jersey. These lands comprise tidal wetlands, unfragmented forests, habitats for rare species, agricultural lands and open space available to the public for recreation and contemplation. The work of our organization over a period of 54 years is now threatened in an unprecedented way.

We respectfully request that you reconsider the proposed actions.

I moved to Delaware County on the Delaware River in 1989, hoping for a better environment for the upbringing of my children. I left an lucrative position in Manhattan in order to accomplish this goal. I have been active in the Bald Eagle Restoration/Mangement program with NYS DEC ENDANGERED SPECIES UNIT project ever since. Yesterday, the bald eagle was removed from the Endangered Species list. This gave me great pride, and yet I'm still worried. It is apparent to me, that this designation, will have a significant impact on the Upper Dealware, for the restoration of the Bald eagle, as well as many other species. Habitat will be lost, which is crucial for many species in order to survive. To my mind, this designation is absolutely ludicrous. Finally, I am not a wealthy person, and I have always thought that I had made the right decision to invest in a pristine property on the upper Delaware River. This personal investment could all be lost. Do we really want to sacrafice our nation's most beautiful areas'; ones that are supposedly protected under federal law, to some private company not even located in this country? Their gain is our nation's true loss.

NYRI will have the right to take my land, or part of it, for high voltage towers, which really won't connect to anything and will probably be outdated by the time they are installed. A wildlife refuge is no place for pipelines and power lines. The purpose of a wildlife refuge is to protect the habitat of the animals that make it their home.

The constant inroads into natural habitat by humans around the world has had a huge impact on all other species. Sufficient diversity of species is essential to the survival of humans and it's time we recognize that fact.

Thank you for your consideration of my comments.

Respectfully yours,

Constance Alexander

I live in New York City. In spite of the fact that I would therefore "benefit" from the Mid-Atlantic Corridor power line, I must voice my opposition. The wild and scenic Upper Delaware River is the economic engine that drives a strong tourism-based economy in upstate New York, but that engine is threatened by the huge, proposed power line that would slash through the river corridor. The plan would mean massive clearcutting, ongoing herbicide use and seizing property from landowners by eminent domain. It's no wonder that the Upper Delaware is one of America's Most Endangered Rivers of 2007. I'm a frequent visitor to the Upper Delaware and can say that we would all be losers at it's destruction.

I live in the town of Greene and I do NOT want high radiation power lines running through my back yard. not only will it ruin the beauty of our small upstate town and whole county (Chenango County)which is known for its beauty, rolling green hills and tranquility but I am extremely concerned about its effects on our health and the health of our children. We do NOT want under any circumstances the power lines to run through our town. THIS is not negotiable !!!! There is no benefit to the local community but puts all of us at risk. Do NOT repeat Do NOT put this power line through our village of Greene!!!Thank you Stella Ohl

I am writing to express my opposition to the Green Path Energy Corridor proposed by Los Angeles Department of Water and Power. I work as an environmental educator at a nature preserve in the Pipes Canyon Wilderness area near Pioneertown. The preserve includes portions of the scenic Sawtooth Mountains and surrounding basalt-capped buttes and mesas. Public donations have helped us dedicate ourselves to protecting these extraordinary places and wildlife, while offering them as refuges and places of learning to the growing population centers that surround them.

This project threatens Pipes Canyon and other southern California preserves in the area. The towers would disrupt wildlife corridors, open the area to increased ORV damage and increase the risk of wildfire. They would also destroy one of southern California's last places where it is possible to experience the solitude and vistas we all associate with the old west. All proposed routes for this corridor go through extremely sensitive, protected and private lands, including one of the last and largest wetlands in the Mojave Desert; Big Morongo Canyon Preserve. Though our community and County planning officials were never notified or consulted during the creation of this plan, we are the ones who will live with its consequences.

I teach local college students and preserve visitors about natural systems and resources. I understand and applaud the commitment to generating and transporting renewable power. But I also know that this can be accomplished in ways that do not sacrifice some of the last wild lands in southern California. Los Angeles has not yet begun to explore the many ways it could conserve and produce energy closer to home. Nor does it seem that the developers of this plan are committed to exploring new options for power transmission, including those presented in the Vision and Framework for Strategy and Planning published by the U.S. Government's Climate Change Technology Program. This document advocates using existing power corridors that utilize new technologies in transmission conductors and cables, rather than the creation of new corridors and larger towers.

I teach students who are surprised to find out that there was once a lake in Owens Valley or that the Colorado River once supported a delta filled with fish, wildlife and an entire human culture. Last summer our preserve was engulfed in the Sawtooth Complex fire that burned over 61,000 acres. Many people lost their homes and our entire community was deeply affected by the loss of countless animals and long-lived stands of Joshua tree, pinyon and juniper woodlands. Our area has just begun a very long and precarious road to recovery. We are committed to allowing this land the opportunity to heal. Opening this area to the degradation and fire risk that follows in the wake of large energy corridors will drain this land of its resources just as surely as did water-grabbing during the last century.

Let's explore all options for power generation and transmission openly and intelligently, with all of California's communities and innovators invited to the table.

Sullivan, Robert G.

The Desert National Wildlife Refuge was created to protect Nevada's bighorn sheep. Power line protection was not the idea and should be scrapped.

I want to see the nation and localities focus more on energy conservation and alternative energy, and exceedingly less on providing more and more energy derived from fossil fuels or hydroelectric dams that depend on destroying natural environments to create water supply. The current proposed new electric line must have a big money lobby behind it--I say--get the devil behind thee!Oppose the line.

As a resident of upstate New York I have learned to conserve energy. My suggestion is that the people of the New York City area do the same.
If more power is needed let it be generated in their back yard, not in mine.
We, the upstate residents should not be punished for their greed.

Hi my name is Sherry Beilstein. I would like to say that I oppose the electric towers going up in my area. I live in Marianna ,Pennsylvania. I have lived here most of my life except for 8 years that I lived in New York. My children are the 5th generation to live here. I moved back to Pa. because family is important to me. The towers concern me on many facters mainly the health issues. I have 3 children and I did not have them to lose them to cancer from these lines.I feel that we in Pa. have plenty of electric power in our area. We do not have steel mills anymore and have that extra electric to use. We can sell Virginia our coal and ship it by train. They can build there own electric towers to power their own state. Thank you for letting me voice my opinion. After all that is what I am proud about being an American. Sincerely, Sherry Beilstein

I am voicing my concern about have a high voltage power line in my backyard. I am very concerned about my health and the health of my family. I do not smoke,I do not take drugs, I do not drink, I exercise daily, eat well, get annual medical checkups. I am very health conscious and do not want to be exposed unnecessarily to high voltage electromagnetic fields. If such a line needs to be built it must be built in unpopulated areas....not right through villages and towns where this exposure will jeopardize the health of our citizens. I am very disturbed that this project is even being considered. There is something fundamentally flawed with any process that does not consider the health of citizens....how can this be possible? We need government protection agencies like your own to be our voice in these matters as corporate America does seems only to focus on the bottom line, not on the health of people affected by their actions. I and my family are in the line of fire here....please be our voice, please have this project go through an unpopulated area. Thanks

Like millions of other Americans, my husband and I looked for the beauty and peace for our young family by buying several acres in the suburbs and building a beautiful home to watch the sunset and deer from our back deck. Our two children, a boy and a girl, are, of course, our most precious possessions and protecting their well being our greatest priority. Who could imagine that a legislative act of Congress that almost nobody knows about could threaten the tranquility of our lives and, perhaps, the health of our children

Utilities have pointed to the NIETC as a way to protect our national security. Unfortunately, like many other actions taken in recent years since 9-11, we have to ask whether allowing the electric companies to build new transmission lines wherever they want, actually protects our security or endangers it; whether these new lines will actually serve a national security and national energy purpose or simply serve as a shortcut for the electric companies to add more profit to their bottom lines while endangering the environment and the health of our children.

When Congress passed the NIETC provision, it failed to include any environmental protections. By guaranteeing that any new transmission line would receive a guaranteed financial return, the Federal Government assured the use of cheap dirty coal as a means to power future energy consumption. This is one of the most critical issues America and the world faces if we are going to mitigate the danger of global warming. Hopefully, now that the Supreme Court has ruled that the EPA CAN regulate CO2 emissions, serious steps should be taken towards that goal. The more we use coal, the more green house gases are produced, the warmer our summers will to become, the more we will need to offset the electricity needed for those peak days, the more transmission lines we will need, and so on. We will be the dog chasing its tail until it finally drops dead from exhaustion.

On April 26, Congressmen Tom Davis convened a hearing regarding the serious negative impacts of an NIET Corridor, the very next day, April 27, the Department of Energy (DOE) announced the release of a draft Mid-Atlantic NIET Corridor affecting millions of Americans. This corridor runs through eight states, 202 counties, and the District of Columbia. The corridor could affect one third of the state of Virginia alone. DOE has given citizens only 18 days to prepare for the hearing on May 15th at the Doubletree hotel in Arlington There has been NO formal public notification and no REAL transparency within this entire process. The question has to be asked. Who formulated this transmission policy and why is it being steamrolled ahead in spite of concerns of Congressmen and Senators, Governors in the affected states, local county leadership , and thousands of citizens due to its potential adverse affects on so many people. Who is watching out for citizens we asking?

When asked, DOE reps will tell you that they don't require transmission lines as the main mode of energy transportation, but let us be real, it IS called the National Interest Electric TRANSMISSION Corridor. A high level DOE official, who asked to remain anonymous, finally became so worn down by my questions regarding why ONLY new transmission lines had a guaranteed federal financial return that he finally said, "I didn't write this legislation, congressional staffers did, ask THEM why they did not put in incentives for conservation or renewable energy". When I pressed him regarding the use of dirty coal and that it is responsible for 40% of co2 emissions, he said he agreed with me. There was NO policy within the DOE to reduce green house gasses. He said " I was preaching to the converted" and encouraged me to express my views at the upcoming hearing.

Who will benefit the most from this NIET Corridor? The national security of the United States or the management and stockholders of the electric companies. Congress needs to take a second look at this potential monster before it is totally out of control. Energy independence and security is, of course, one of our highest priorities. But there are better ways to ensure a reliable and secure electric grid – energy efficiency, energy conservation, new technology, and distributed generation – and unlike transmission lines, these alternatives don't come at the expense of the natural beauty of a world that we hold in trust for the future well being of the next generation and, hopefully, many generations to come. I urge the Department of Energy to be ethical, courageous and above all, FAIR, and deny these designations of corridors. This is a NEW era, and citizens are paying attention, not simply for their property rights, but for the future of their children and generations yet born. I imagine these comments are probably not even read by anyone of significance, but I want MY children to be able to look back and know their mother tried to change the course of a failed energy policy. What will YOUR children say about you?

Thank you for the opportunity to comment. I believe that the bedrock on which these corridors rests is none other than the naked power of the U.S. Government to condemn private property for the purpose of enriching the share holders of large utility companies. Far too little has been done to decrease our reliance on the incandescent electric light bulb. Far too little has been done to adapt solar sources to our needs. And very little has been done to promote conservation.

I am against this project; there is no benefit to the taxpayers and citizens of the upstate areas where these towers and power lines will forever alter the environmental beauty of the landscape, and bring with them the health risks which are well documented. If downstate areas need more power, put power plants and towers in their backyards. REgardless of the $$$$$...or perhaps, you could ask THEM to pay for the costs of the energy THEY WILL USE...and ask them to view the resulting towers, lines, etc. NOT IN OUR BACKYARDS!!!

I routinely hike in the areas affected by the proposed corridor. I have taken part in programs to maintain the wildlife guzzlers in the refuge. I have seen the Bighorn Sheep. I have seen the evidence of the wild cats. This area is evidence of our ability to repair the damages that man has done, to protect and to preserve what man has not yet deserved.

By contrast, this proposed plan is evidence of man's ready willingness to destroy the few natural wild places left to him.

I urge you to reconsider this plan.

We re Americans and the domain issue for PRIVATE Enterprise was never the intention of the concept. We love our land, and the impact of the Transmission lines will bring great heartache to many. Please do not allow this to come to fruition.

I humbly ask for your help in this matter.

I'm not for the federal government overriding states rights for this purpose. This seems like big government favoring corporate America over the wishes of the people, that isn't right for bigger profits for electric companies. I lived in LV, one hour from the Desert NWR for 12 years thru 2005. I've been to the refuge many times; enjoying its uniqueness and wildness. It is one of the last true wildernesses in US. You would destroy its habitat and introduce devastating risk of disasters by constructing an energy corridor. Bighorn sheep are protected here and will continue to be ONLY if the refuge is left intact. There is NO safe way to build pipelines ANYWHERE. We've seen the destruction and havoc this has caused, time and time again. The proposal is disgusting, to say the least and extremely misguided and stupid!

To Whom It May Concern:

I was dismayed to learn that the United States Department of Energy has proposed to designate almost the entire state of New York as a "National Interest Electric Transmission-Corridor". I understand that under the EPACT 2005, this designation would permit the special treatment to investors and companies that seek to build transmission facilities within the corridor. I believe that this designation would be more of a burden than a blessing since it covers virtually all of New York State and much of Pennsylvania. Since a NIETC designation is supposed to signify those specific areas most subject to electric transmission congestion costs, it does not appear that the DOE has really examined which exact areas of New York State, if any should be designated by a corridor. Also, the DOE has ignored the laws of conservation, promotion of environmentally sound energy alternatives, and implementation of other demand side measures. This proposed designation will only ensure more outdated, inefficient and environmentally damaging energy sources. Please stand by the DOE's statement "Federal government is not dictating how the States, regions, transmission providers or electric utilities should meet their energy challenges." We, the citizens of New York and Pennsylvania, hold you to your promise.

Thank You

I am livid that consideration would even be given to NYRI's proposed route.

I am sorely disappointed in a government, that would consider a plan which would benefit one community, at the detriment of others.

YOU CAN NOT LET THIS PLAN MOVE FORWARD!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!

Dear DOE Representative:

Your recent designation of a National Interest Electric Transmission Corridor (NIETC) covering much of Upstate New York demonstrates a total disregard for the people living here. As one of those people, I am vehemently opposed to what amounts to a federal takeover of my community and ask that you rescind your decision.

In specific, the route that has been proposed by New York Regional Interconnect, Inc. (NYRI) for a 400,000-volt, direct current power line is unnecessary. This foreign-owned project would bisect numerous communities, undermine our already fragile economy, wreak havoc on our environment and raise electric rates while delivering no benefits and encouraging wasteful energy habits.

One of the most disturbing aspects of this federal takeover is the specter of federally supported eminent domain to seize land needed for NYRI's ill-conceived project. Corridor designation allows NYRI to complete the state Public Service Commission's review process knowing the federal government can and will say "yes" even if the State of New York says "no" to it.

NIETC designation is bad government, bad energy policy and bad for people who would have to live with the consequences of NYRI's destructive project. Rescind this unwise and destructive decision and allow state and local governments to exercise their rights.

Yours,

Joseph G. DiFabio

The Delaware River Basin is on of the top 10 rivers on the endangered list. The communities along the corridor depend on tourism ie: river rafting. for their lively hood. Allowing MYRI to put up unsightly towers would greatly affect the economy in may small communitites along the corridor. Also, since this is a private Canadian based company allowing eminent domain status to NYRI is unacceptable. This would set a very bad pressident for other foreign governments to come into our country and overtake our democratic way of life. Our forefathers faught too hard to win our freedom. The many men and women who have given their lives defending our freedom would have died in vain should this be aloud to happen.

I am strongly against NYRI coming into our country and marring our beautiful land with ugly towers.

NYRI's comment that its 200 mile transmission line will bring energy independence defies rational thought. A 200 mile unbilical cord with all its vulnerabilites would only lend itself to excessive levels of dependence, control, and abuse. While NYRI sees itself as a cure, it truly is the disease.

As a parent and lifelong citizen of Greene, NY I beg you to abandon the proposed plan of running power lines through our town. Our children will be placed at risk (birth defects and cancer have been linked to high voltage lines) as well as the economy of our village which relies heavily upon people who travel here to enjoy the beauty of the area.

We all understand that the continued delivery of electricity is vital to all of us. However, given the impact of coal-burning electric generation plants on climatic change (frightening) we can no longer condone the use of dirty coal to make electricity for us to run air conditioners (outrageous!). All energy companies must change NOW to use of scrubbers or other means of generating clean electricity (nuclear?). Americans must learn to cut back in their usage(not hard...many are thoughtless and inconsiderate in our usage). DOE is in the unique position of promoting change in both areas. To not take the very real issue of climatic change into serious consideration in your study cannot be an option. If you don't think of your children and grandchildren, then think of mine. Thank you.

Please consider holding a community meeting to discuss the mid-Atlantic corridor, among those in upstate New York that it will affect the most: people who actually live in the path of the proposed powerlines.

Along with many members of my community, I don't believe that you can gain a thorough understanding of the project's potential impact on community members -- constituents -- in NYC and Rochester alone.

Please schedule a meeting so that the people who actually live in the affected areas upstate can speak out.

Many thanks.

Although there is likely a need to plan for and develop future energy corridors, it is unacceptable to grant what amounts to a blank check and eminent domain authority to the US Department of Energy and the energy industry. States, local governments, and impacted property owners should have legitimate input into the matter. Additionally we continue to focus on our present energy system and promoting business as usual. Perhaps as a nation we should be focusing more on alternative power sources, conservation, new technology, and the generation of electricity near the demand, which would require fewer transmission lines and corridors.

I am very concerned about how we are destroying our countryside and our land, along with many people's homes and farms - some having been in families for generations. And this is so the cities can grow and become more congested and cause more violence. It's also because of fear instead of education. Please don't do this to our country. We need to consider the MANY alternatives available to us.

Re: National Interest Electric Transmission Corridor designation and NYRI power line proposal

Dear Secretary Bodman:

I am writing to request that the public comment period be extended and that local public hearings be held concerning the NIETC designation and the NYRI proposal. I am in opposition to the New York Regional Interconnect (NYRI) project and the establishment of a National Interest Electric Transmission Corridor (NIETC) in central New York. Both proposals seem to be very bad ideas that will cause great harm to the state and to our nation as a whole.

Central New York stands to be severely adversely affected by both proposals. Yet those of us who live along the path of the proposed transmission corridor and the NYRI power line have been given no reasonable opportunity to be heard on the issue. Having public hearings hundreds of miles away from the proposed route of the power line is an insult to the concept of open government. Many of the people who live adjacent to the proposed line have no idea that their very homes may be taken through eminent domain by a private company. Other property owners may see the value of their homes plummet, with no compensation from NYRI. Manufacturers will be hit hard by rising electricity costs as well. Certainly these people deserve the respect of having a local hearing.

Therefore, I am happy to join with my neighbors in requesting that the public comment period be extended an additional sixty days and that public hearings be scheduled in each county where the NYRI power line is proposed to be located. I look forward to learning of your decision, and trust that it will be favorable to the interests of those who call central New York their home.

Sincerely,

Lorena M. Robertson

I highly oppose the NIETC. I do not agree with the use of eminent domain or taking away the states rights in making decisions. I am concerned with the increased pollution to our area from the coal fired power plants which are already at high levels. I am against giving companies the right to do anything to the properties they destroy without looking at other options.

I have questions that I think should be considered prior to the designation. What alternative measured were looked at prior to this designation? What about rebuilding/reopening the plants that were closed on the east coast? What studiies were done on the impact to the land, communities and health of all that were implacted by the lines?

What alternative sources of energy can be used that are environmental friendly? What resrictions are going to be placed on the companies who use the corridor as far as working with the communities involved? Can you make the companies bury the lines to reduce the impact ont the affected areas? What incentive is there for a company to look at other options if you allow more of the same in terms of the environment? What relationship does PJM have with the power companies in designating the corridors with the DOE? How is Allegheny Power planning the TrAIL prior to any designation?

I urge you to look into other alternatives and deny the NEITC.

The Draft Mid-Atlantic Area National Corridor amounts to infrastructural sprawl and should be significantly sized down or rejected altogether. At its current scope, the corridor does nothing to foster the level of precise planning for new infrastructure and demand management that is needed. Instead, it merely threatens a wealth of historic, natural and cultural resources. Perhaps most egregious is the fact that the proposed corridor appears designed to place the burden of infrastructure (e.g. air pollution from coal-fired generation, land condemnation for transmission lines) on citizens and communities far removed from the congestion and rising demand.

It is very disappointing that Constellation Energy is apparently able to superceed environmental, historic preservation, and health as well as resident oppositon to their plans for the high intensity power lines which would provide coal generated power to the North East and Northern Virginia consumers.

This type of degredation of our area should be a last resort to solving energy issues rather than an easy go to solution.

Firstly, Coal power plants cause severe health and environmental damage. Secondly - no energy conservation efforts are being advocated, and inadequate efforts are being made to promote clean fuel technologies.

Our area's envirnoment, health, historic preservation will be damaged by a eyesore which promotes the use of outdated, unhealthy and envionmentally damaging energy technologies.

We will be stuck with this dinosaur of a project which is already outdated.

This policy should be reviewed, and citizen opposition should be considered.

If the electric companies cannot comply fully with all pollution standards due to cost, how can they come up with the money to build a transmission line? Why must we suffer the consequences of the additional pollution. Why not build a power plant at the users location?

Attn: Docket No. 2007-OE-01

The Office of Electricity Delivery and Energy Reliability,

OE-20U.S. Department of Energy

1000 Independence Avenue SW Washington, DC 20585

One of the Department of Energy's tasks is to help stabilize the nation's electrical grid, and you have proposed for this a draft National Interest Electric Transmission Corridor. However, designation would give preeminence to transmission without addressing other vital components of the supply and demand equation.

- One of the most important and the very first priority should be conservation. The most energy is that which is used, but is not needed. All electrical consumers have an interest in stabilizing prices by reducing demand, and conservation the first and best way to do this. There should be no NIETC corridor designation for transmission unless conservation is mandated.
- Demand response by smart metering is a viable and proven strategy for stabilizing the grid. Instead of supplier reduction through brown outs, informed consumers can respond to electrical congestion through informed pricing; one is manipulated by the power companies and the other by the consumers. Consumers will alter their behavior if they are given timely information about the current cost of electricity. A variety of proven load management approaches exists, but their implementation cannot be trusted to power companies, which have little or no financial interests in reducing demand. The PJM supports this, but there is no clear regional or national strategy in place. There should be no corridor designation for transmission unless there are corresponding demand response strategies mandated.
- NIETC corridor designation encourages power companies to build transmission lines without increasing the efficiency of their lines or grid management. New wire and grid management technology exists that would reduce the need for more lines. No NIETC corridor designation should be approved unless there is a corresponding mandate for upgrading the grid management and wiring technology.

A NIETC designation gives preference to coal-fired electricity. Emerging technologies and natural gas produced electricity without the need for longer transmission lines should be able to compete equally without federal interference. By encouraging transmission siting the DOE is favoring an urban sprawl electrical system and coal. The two most prevalent arguments for transmission-sprawl need are related to economics and security.

- Coal fuel is currently obtained more cheaply but, this ignores the costs that are not directly passed on to consumers.
 - Mining, transporting, and burning coal incur health and legal costs from air and water pollution. Ultimately the taxpayers are responsible for these burdens. A good example of this: the environmental superfund.
 - The current costs of using coal do not reflect the future costs. Future litigation for environmental damage due to mining and burning coal may mirror those of tobacco. Certainly an increased dependence on coal, a limited resource that will become increasingly difficult to obtain, will certainly lead to inflation.
 - Future costs could have grave consequences. The developed world has a responsibility to assess and lead an effort to reduce CO₂. Increased US use of coal, gambling on unproven technology for sequestering CO₂, does nothing to inspire a reduction by important developing nations with large coal supplies, China and India.

- Designation of a NIETC corridor may be seen to increase security by improving the supply of electricity. The converse is true; widely separating source and sink increases security risks. The major sources of low-sulfur coal require transport by rail over long distances. A failure in this sector, physically or economically, would quickly adjust consumer energy costs. Distributing electricity production nearer to sinks makes energy more reliable electrically and economically.

From a long term perspective environmentally friendly distributed electrical generation is both more economical and more secure. Technologies must improve and become economically competitive; this can happen only if the DOE is neutral- or favors clean renewable generation. Establishing a NIETC designation favors investment in coal-electrical generation. If the DOE feels that transmission is essential, then you should mandate power companies produce corresponding conservation, demand response, grid management, and renewable generation strategies.

Desert National Wildlife Refuge is just that, a refuge. This area is diverse in natural wild life and is not to be demolished by construction of power line and gas and oil pipelines. This area has been set aside for their safety, keep your construction out of it!

The Piedmont Environmental Council circulated a petition in person and online related to energy policy issues. The petition in part stated the following with respect to opposition to National Interest Electric Transmission Corridors:

- 1) There has not been an adequate consideration of specific alternatives to new transmission lines, including a full range of demand management and peak demand reduction measures; energy conservation measures; and alternative transmission technologies and upgrades;
- 2) There has not been an assessment of impacts on the environment, a requirement by the National Environmental Policy Act which is reasonable given the demonstrated potential impacts on historic, scenic, natural, and cultural resources in the proposed corridor;

The full petition text reads as follows:

As citizens and friends of the Commonwealth of Virginia, as Dominion Power ratepayers, as land owners and residents of the impacted area, we the undersigned reject Dominion's Loudoun line transmission proposal as a vision for our land, our homes and neighborhoods, and for America's air and energy policy.

We will not choose one ill-conceived route over another. The alternatives presented by Dominion are not alternatives at all in that they fail to examine the full range of solutions. These include energy conservation, higher efficiency standards and demand side management.

Our founding fathers cherished this land, lived and died here. Democracy was born and took shape on this land. Much blood has been let defending this land and the principles of liberty and justice. Like those before us, we will stand to defend those principles and this land.

The potential use of Federal and state condemnation powers for the proposed Mt. Storm to Loudoun transmission line is unacceptable. There has been no public and transparent study or clear understanding provided of why the use of such extraordinary powers is justified.

We protest the effort by PJM Interconnection, Allegheny Power, and Dominion Power to request early National Interest Electric Transmission Corridor designation in our communities by the Secretary of the U.S. Department of Energy for the following reasons:

- 1) There has not been an adequate consideration of specific alternatives to new transmission lines, including a full range of demand management and peak demand reduction measures; energy conservation measures; and alternative transmission technologies and upgrades;
- 2) There has not been an assessment of impacts on the environment, a requirement by the National Environmental Policy Act which is reasonable given the demonstrated potential impacts on historic, scenic, natural, and cultural resources in the proposed corridor; and,
- 3) Dominion should be required to provide the public with the data and assumptions to enable independent verification of the claimed potential for power disruptions in Northern Virginia.

It makes no sense to raze thousands of ares of wildlife habitat, destroy working farms, and eliminate entire villages in order to erect a power transmission line which is old technology. Because of the extreme voltage, the proposed NYRI power lines are dangerous and unhealthy. We now have better fuel technologies which are NOT dependent on fossil fuel, are clean, economical, and do not require raping thousands of acres of land. Solar energy would work since there are many flat-roofed buildings and skyscrapers in cities. Wind power is also being used successfully in Potsdam, NY and in Madision County. Neither solar power nor wind power requires the devastation of property or the displacement of home owners, and they are proven sources of clean poweer.

REF: DOCKET 2007-OE-01 (the draft Mid-Atlantic Area National Corridor)

Dear Secretary Bodman:

As a concerned citizen of the United States of America, I am exercising my First Amendment right to express my shock and dismay at the handling of the Department of Energy's announcement of the first ever National Interest Electric Transmission Corridors.

This is an issue of National Proportions, and with the announcement in late April 2007, citizens were told that they would be able to attend and speak at assigned meetings located within the designated corridors. What we have learned is that although the Mid-Atlantic "corridor" includes parts or all of the states of Virginia, West Virginia, Ohio, District of Columbia, Maryland, Delaware, Pennsylvania, New Jersey and New York, the meetings scheduled for citizens to make public comments were apparently an "afterthought." I attended the meeting in Arlington, which at that time, was one of only two meetings that had been scheduled for citizens. Since then, due to the public outcry, several other meetings have been held, but not scheduled or located at the convenience of the citizens and Congressional districts impacted by the Draft NIETC.

Given the population affected by this designation, it appears that our appointed government officials are taking matters into their own hands by providing little to no opportunity for our citizens to speak and ask questions about what this means to them, their property, and their futures.

The National Interest Electric Transmission Corridor "draft" will grant companies, not the government, the power to condemn land for the purpose of building electric transmission lines through any property that they deem necessary for this purpose.

We, as citizens of this country, have requested specific information that the government and companies have used to develop the case for such need. To date, we have not received any information that supports the extraordinary need that these proposals appear to fill. Letters go unanswered. Even our elected officials are being ignored! Where has our "government of the people, by the people and for the people" gone? I think Mr. Lincoln's profound words have lost their meaning in the 21st century!

Your letter directed to the House Speaker Nancy Pelosi prior to the narrow defeat of the Wolf-Hinchev amendment to the EPA Policy Act did not include specifics as to why this extreme action must be taken.

Our constitution's Fifth and Fourteenth Amendments refer to due process. One fitting definition of this phrase is that the government can only take property for public purposes; and owners of property are entitled to fair compensation for their land. This due process also allows the right to be heard in one's own defense.

How can we defend ourselves if we are not allowed to see the “charges” against us? I thought I was born in the land of freedom!

I spoke at the Arlington forum, taking time away from my business to “patiently” wait my turn for the TWO minutes I was allotted. In that meeting we heard from several well-informed speakers who have repeatedly asked for more information to be able to reconcile these actions to the need.

In addition, instructions for written comments were unclear. We have been given a website with information on how to comment electronically, by mail and in person. However, the written comments are given a postmark deadline (individuals have received this) that is not listed on this site. In addition, the links across the website send the user to different pages that are not similar for the same things, such as the Frequently Asked Questions. With something that we citizens consider so important, the information trail should be easy to follow.

Questions:

- Why is the government TAKING the power to GIVE stockholder-owned utilities the power to TAKE private property from citizens?
- What is the specific basis for the need assessment for these transmission lines?
- Are Clean Air laws taken into account for all states included in the NIETC?
- Has there been an Environmental Impact Assessment done in any area designated as NIETC? If not, why is this not deemed necessary for this NIETC?
- How can citizens truly have their concerns addressed? We are still being treated as if this action is “for our own good.”
- I am also concerned that FOIA requests are not being acknowledged in accordance with the law. I have communicated with other concerned citizens in many of the other states in the corridor who have not received responses to their requests in a timely manner, as is afforded citizens under the law. What is being done to respond to these requests?
- At the Arlington Forum, we were told that the Department of Energy is requiring utilities to cooperate in implementing the actions necessary to develop this NIETC. Is the DOE also requiring these multi-state utilities to work together in developing demand response and energy conservation programs under a similar deadline?

Along with others, I am watching and communicating with my fellow citizens to ensure that our elected (and appointed) government does not abuse their power. We are a government OF THE PEOPLE, BY THE PEOPLE AND FOR THE PEOPLE. Give the people DUE PROCESS as defined by our CONSTITUTION.

Yours truly,

A Concerned Citizen of the United States of America
Donna M. Wood

I believe we should increase mpg on cars, encourage carpooling & using public transportation, trying voluntary or mandatory cutbacks in the consumption of oil & electricity before we scar the landscape with huge transmission towers. Americans need to learn conservation of our natural resources, & building more transmission lines only encourages them to be wasteful.

The NIET Corridor designation through National Parks and Conservation Easements defeats the purpose of setting aside precious national space to protect our valuable assets. I am opposed to the decision give utilites access to federal eminent domain authority and support the recommendation to request that public hearings be set up to get feedback from citizens on this issue.

Draft Mid-Atlantic Area National Corridor

PUBLIC COMMENT OF:

Walter & Alice Fuchs,
Washington County Resident

COMMENTS IN PROTEST

As a resident of Washington County, I appreciate the opportunity provided to submit comments regarding the National Interest Electric Transmission Corridor (NIETC) for the draft Mid-Atlantic Area National Corridor.
1. I understand Allegheny Power and their partners are trying to limit the Public Utility Commission (PUC) reviews by seeking NIETC designation. The NIETC designation would provide Allegheny Power to take rights-of-way under federal eminent domain affecting not only my property, but also all properties in Washington County.

2. The Mid-Atlantic Area National Corridor covers a massive geographic area that extends well beyond the "Critical Congestion Areas" that have been identified. The draft Mid-Atlantic Area National Corridor should only contain the areas identified as the "Critical Congestion Areas".

3. The designation of the current proposal of the Mid-Atlantic National Corridor Area would initiate a safety hazard to its surrounding lands that cannot be assured, nor reasonably protected, and which represents what could be a Homeland Security "attractive nuisance" to our Commonwealth, our families and our local communities.

4. The economic vitality and development in the proposed Mid-Atlantic National Corridor would be constrained by the lack of adequate or reasonably priced electricity, resulting in economic decline.

CONCLUSION

As a resident of Washington County, I respectfully request the U.S. Department of Energy to consider my comments in PROTEST, and DENY the proposed draft Mid-Atlantic Area National Corridor designation.

Respectfully Submitted,

Washington County Resident,

Comments of the

On the

Office of Electric Delivery and Energy Reliability ("OE")

Draft National Interest Electric Transmission Corridor
Designations
[Docket No. 2007-OE-01, Draft Mid-Atlantic
Area National Corridor]

(Federal Register, Volume 72 No. 87, Monday, May 7, 2007)

The Northeast Power Coordinating Council, Inc. ("NPCC Inc.") offers the following comments in response to the U.S. Department of Energy's Office of Electric Delivery and Energy Reliability's Draft National Interest Electric Transmission Corridor Designations.

In response to EPAct 2005 and the certification of NERC as the Electric Reliability Organization ("ERO"), NPCC restructured, transferring its Membership interests to a Regional Reliability Organization, in the form of a not-for-profit corporation, NPCC Inc., and established a separate and independent, affiliated, not-for-profit corporation, Northeast Power Coordinating Council: Cross-Border Regional Entity, Inc. ("NPCC CBRE").

NPCC CBRE serves as the Cross-Border Regional Entity for the Northeastern U.S. and Eastern Canada with functions delegated or contracted to it from the ERO, to be backstopped by FERC and Canadian Provincial governmental and/or regulatory authorities.

NPCC Inc., is the international Regional Reliability Organization for Northeastern North America, and as successor to NPCC, provides regional reliability member services and acts as the vehicle through which States and Provinces can fulfill their political mandate to oversee the Northeastern North American electric infrastructure through development, assessment and enforcement of regionally-specific reliability criteria, including those addressing adequacy requirements.

The geographic area of the NPCC region totals approximately one million square miles and includes New York State, the six New England states, Ontario, Québec and the Maritime Provinces. The total population served is approximately 56 million people. From an electric load perspective, 20% of the Eastern Interconnection load is served within the NPCC region. For Canadian electricity requirements, 70% of the country's load is located within the NPCC Region. This represents a current NPCC regional composition by load that is approximately 45% U.S. and 55% Canadian.

COMMENTS

NPCC Inc. respectfully submits the following comments for DOE's consideration regarding its Draft Mid-Atlantic Area National Corridor [Docket No. 2007-OE-01].

Consideration of Wide-Area, trans-Regional & potentially international reliability impacts

DOE has recognized that "The statute provides little direction on how the Department should draw the boundaries of a National Corridor. FPA section 216(a) uses the term "geographic area" and lists several considerations the Secretary may take into account when making a National Corridor designation. However, the statute does not define the term "corridor."

DOE concluded that "Setting National Corridor boundaries through a source-and-sink approach is consistent with the problem-identification purpose of National Corridor designations under FPA section 216(a), because it is not focused on any particular transmission projects, or set of transmission projects."¹

While NPCC Inc. supports DOE's approach "to identify corridors for potential projects, as opposed to specific routes for transmission facilities", the source-and-sink approach may result in a too narrowly defined corridor designation that may preclude consideration any additional transmission and/or supporting facilities outside of the specified corridor for a project, needed to meet NERC/ERO reliability standards and/or more stringent regional and local reliability criteria.

NPCC Inc. recommends DOE take an Interconnection-wide system viewpoint in their corridor designations, in order to avoid the encouragement of potentially conflicting transmission projects that may increase the likelihood of undesired, adverse reliability impacts that could jeopardize a significant portion of the bulk electric system. These reliability considerations are not limited to the United States grid system but can extend, in the case of the proposed Draft Mid-Atlantic Area National Corridor into Canada as well.

In previous filed comments,^{2, 3} NPCC recommended that the DOE take into account the wide-area, trans-regional and potential international reliability impacts of the resultant future transmission infrastructure when designating corridors believed to be beneficial in advancing the stated goal of designating "any geographic area experiencing electric energy transmission capacity constraints or congestion that adversely affects consumers.”⁴

The Draft Mid–Atlantic Area National Corridor DOE designates needs to be broad enough to allow for the complete, reliable integration of any proposed corridor projects, in order to mitigate any identified adverse reliability consequences beyond the immediate area they are sited (examples include increased the potential for high circulating power loop flows around Lake Erie,⁵ or additional in restrictions of available generation output⁶).

In general, the corridors need to be large enough support projects that resolve the identified transmission capacity constraints and congestion along with their coordinated reliable integration into the wide-area, trans-regional international grid. This approach also provides consistency with the nine planning principles (coordination, openness, transparency, information exchange, comparability, dispute resolution, regional coordination, economic planning studies, and cost allocation) outlined in the FERC Final Rule: Preventing Undue Discrimination and Preference in Transmission Service, Order No. 890.⁷

RE: NATIONAL ELECTRIC TRANSMISSION CONGESTION STUDY – REQUEST FOR COMMENTS ON DESIGNATION OF NATIONAL INTEREST ELECTRIC TRANSMISSION CORRIDORS

The California Chamber of Commerce (CalChamber), representing over 15,000 businesses in California, submits these comments in response to the National Electric Transmission Study. The CalChamber supports the designation of the National Interest Electric Transmission Corridor, specifically in the area from the Imperial Valley Substation in Imperial County, California, west through eastern San Diego County to the San Diego load center.

A CRITICAL NEED FOR INFRASTRUCTURE

There is a need for new and improved transmission lines nationwide. The recent congestion study conducted by your Department, identifies the Atlantic Coastal Area and Southern California as “critical congestion areas”. This study creates a dialogue with stakeholders in areas of the nation where congestion is a major concern.

Nationally, new corridors are needed to help with broad electricity distribution. A constant flow of electricity is necessary for national security, the economy and to meet growing population demands.

TIGHTER CONGESTION LEADS TO HIGHER ENERGY COSTS

California business and consumers depend on grid reliability. Energy is directly related to our economy. Disruptions in our electricity grid negatively impact our economy. When a transmission constraint limits the amount of electricity available, energy operators look outside to purchase energy, often times at a higher price. If the grid is disrupted because of heavy congestion or due to a transmission pathway being offline, operators are forced to curtail service from some areas to meet the demands of the entire grid.

California, being the sixth largest economy in the world, cannot afford another energy crisis. Our electricity prices are already amongst the highest in the nation. Power failures that occur in California will most likely affect neighboring states. Because the entire nation depends on California for a number of goods and services, it would be a mistake to overlook the deficiencies that exist in our current system.

SUNRISE POWERLINK

As noted in the study, Southern California, specifically the area that enters San Diego and Los Angeles areas from the east, is one of two “Critical Congestion Areas”. In order to alleviate this immediate congestion, a new transmission line is desperately needed. The lack of infrastructure is preventing local electricity providers from meeting the demands of consumers.

The Sunrise Powerlink project would provide the San Diego and Los Angeles regions with an additional 1000 Megawatts of clean power and would free up electricity to be transported elsewhere. This would dramatically improve the reliability of the state’s electric transmission system by providing an “energy superhighway” that would reduce congestion on existing lines and help protect against future transmission outages that can lead to black-outs.

The California Chamber of Commerce agrees with the Department’s study and strongly believes the Sunrise Powerlink Project is key to helping the state and nation achieve their energy security and demand needs.

We appreciate the opportunity to comment on your study. We hope the Department will continue its efforts to ensure that the future energy needs of California and the rest of the nation is prepared will be met. If you have any questions, please feel free to contact Amisha Patel at 916-930-1843.

We are absolutely opposed to the possible designation for Washington County Pa. We already have our own share of air pollution posing health hazards to our communities. We do not need more power plants and transmission lines scarring our beautiful corner of Western Pa. As American citizens we have a right to have clean air, water and land. What NIETC brings will threaten these essentials for Washington County residents. Our health is more important than anything. Additionally, if Washington County is designated, it will destroy our beautiful country county. Our county has a large Agricultural Security Zone which needs to be protected for our farmers. We are definately opposed to the US DOE's consideration.

We believe these power lines are not needed. From everything we are being told, the extra power that these lines will bring in will allow Dominion to sell it to other states in the Northeast. The goal is to ruin the historic areas in WVA and western Virginia for profit.

Re: COMMENTS ON U.S. DEPARTMENT OF ENERGY'S DRAFT NATIONAL INTEREST ELECTRIC TRANSMISSION CORRIDOR DESIGNATION - SOUTHWEST AREA NATIONAL CORRIDOR

The California Energy Commission (Energy Commission) submits the following comments concerning the United States Department of Energy's (DOE) May 7, 2007, notice of Draft National Interest Electric Transmission Corridor (NIETC) Designations. Specifically, our comments concern the Southwest Area National Corridor, Docket No. 2007-OE-02.

The Energy Commission appreciates DOE's sound rationale and supports the proposed Southwest Area National Corridor NIETC designation. The Energy Commission understands the critical nature of bringing needed transmission on line, particularly in southern California. In earlier comments, we raised concerns that DOE's focus on congestion, as originally proposed, was too restrictive to address California's energy policy priorities.¹ The Energy Commission is pleased to see that DOE has applied a broad approach in identifying national interest corridors that recognizes the need to alleviate congestion and to address constraints that pose obstacles to reasonably priced power, diversity of supply, and energy security regardless of whether these constraints currently produce congestion.

The Energy Commission supports DOE's conclusion that one of the consequences of congestion in southern California is prolonged and exacerbated dependence on natural gas. DOE rightly concludes that inadequate transmission capacity leaves consumers exposed to higher prices and higher price volatility associated with natural gas. DOE has also explicitly recognized California's strong commitment to renewable resources by including not only source locations with substantial amounts of existing, under-used generation, but also locations with potential for substantial development of wind, geothermal, and solar generation. We agree with DOE that improved transmission access to areas with renewable-based generation potential would diversify supply.

The Energy Commission continues to strongly recommend that DOE, as part of its NIETC efforts, develop a process to identify and protect sensitive areas in California that are unsuitable for transmission corridors. We include as an enclosure to this letter a listing of such areas we identified in our March 6, 2006, comments. While we recognize the importance of transmission infrastructure to meet the growing demands of California, we also continue to emphasize California's unique environmental, cultural, and scenic attributes and the need to protect these unique attributes in skillful corridor designation and permitting. As we stated in our earlier comments, protecting certain "no-touch zones" is vital to preserve attributes highly valued by Californians. DOE has concluded that adjusting the boundaries of a National Corridor to avoid parks or other environmentally protected areas is not necessary. We believe this approach fails to recognize the significant potential to streamline the existing planning and permitting process for transmission facilities by proactively identifying those areas where significant environmental impacts and controversies could be avoided altogether.

As the Energy Commission has previously stated, California will not easily cede its sovereignty over land-use decisions relating to transmission development in California. The Energy Commission believes federal pre-emption of state siting authority should only occur as a last resort and never be used to circumvent state environmental standards or mitigation requirements. However, we also believe that in cases where the state has been unable to make progress in approving vital projects, federal backstop authority would be beneficial. Despite good faith efforts to streamline transmission planning and permitting in California, the lack of timely decisions on important transmission projects continues to deeply concern the Energy Commission

The unmistakable message that the Energy Commission derives from the NIETC designation is the need to advance earlier in time the land use decisions needed to locate transmission lines in California. Key legislation (Chapter 4.3 of Division 15 of the California Public Resources Code)² enacted in 2006 created a state transmission corridor designation process for non-federal lands to address land use and environmental issues well in advance of the need for transmission facilities. The Energy Commission is the lead agency responsible for preparing the necessary environmental documentation for transmission corridor designation that is subject to review under the California Environmental Quality Act. For future transmission projects the Energy Commission's new designation process creates an improved linkage between transmission planning and permitting in California.

California's new corridor designation process also links with DOE's energy corridor designation for federal lands in California pursuant to Section 368 of the federal Energy

Policy Act of 2005 (EPA-05). Specifically, it can connect federal energy corridors with state transmission corridors to coordinate timely permitting of high-voltage transmission projects by both federal and state agencies. Competing land uses are exerting tremendous pressure throughout California to set aside lands for transmission corridors before options disappear. California's new corridor designation process supports and facilitates the banking of land needed for transmission infrastructure, thus effectively preserving, for later use, transmission corridors consistent with long-term planning determinations. The Energy Commission is currently developing regulations to govern the transmission designation process and plans to begin accepting corridor applications by the end of this year.

The Energy Commission's Strategic Transmission Investment Plan (Strategic Plan) also facilitates acceleration of land use decisions for transmission lines by identifying needed transmission investments that inform the state's corridor designation process. The Strategic Plan identifies and recommends actions required to implement transmission investments needed to ensure reliability, relieve congestion, and meet future growth in load. In considering the need for transmission, the Energy Commission examines non-wires alternatives to generation, including energy efficiency, demand response, and renewable resources. The first Strategic Plan was completed in November, 2005, and the 2007 Strategic Plan is scheduled for publication later this fall.

As you are aware, the Energy Commission is a cooperating agency for Section 368 of the EPA-05 corridor designation process. We have been coordinating an interagency team of federal and state agencies to review proposals to designate new and/or expand existing energy corridors and examine alternatives to these corridors on federal lands in California. We will continue to offer our assistance with regard to designation of Section 368 corridors, particularly with the preparation of a West-Wide Energy Corridor Programmatic Environmental Impact Statement (PEIS) to evaluate issues associated with the designation of energy corridors on federal lands in eleven Western states. We will also continue to provide input for the ongoing NIETC process.

Transporting electricity is inefficient and environmentally destructive. Big companies need incentives, both negative and positive to invest in alternative energies that can be generated and used locally.

Dear Sirs,

We are completely against the corridor through Virginia. We believe that conservation of energy should be used to the utmost, and it has not been so far. We are also suspicious that the coal generated energy will be coming from West Virginia, through Virginia and on its way to the Northeast, ruining the landscape of our beautiful countryside and polluting the air quality. This is unacceptable and we urge you not to consider approving this National Corridor.

Thank you

As a resident of Prince William County, Virginia, I am opposed to Docket NO. 2007-OE-01 (the Draft Mid-Atlantic Area National Corridor Designation) because I don't think it's in the best interest of the citizens of my county or of the environment to allow power companies (in my case, Dominion Power) the leeway to invoke Federal eminent domain powers to circumvent local (state) authority.

This "corridor" is soooo wide as to be meaningless. It essentially lops off the entire northern portion of Virginia and presents the capability of capricious actions to take land via eminent domain with no recourse. Let the States control their territory and operate within guidelines set out for the national good. Virginia has an established procedure to handle request in the State Corporation Commision. If the NIETC is enacted, it can make all of the study, vetting, etc., go for nought.

I am opposed to the designation of the Mid-Atlantic Area National Corridor. I am humored by the comment on your web site that designation doesn't correlate to the building of new transmission lines. When was the last time this administration (or Congress) called for any conservation or sacrifice? Electric consumption can be cut by 10-20% through a dedicated conservation program.

Our family overwhelmingly opposes DOE's efforts to override state authority to site transmission lines. Authority to site transmission lines should remain with the state. Backstop authority replaces and supersedes state authority. Under the new provisions of section 1221, states are given a token first role while, in reality, state authority will be undercut with newly imposed time constraints that ensure that federal authority is a likelihood in nearly all cases. The provisions which created this new backstop siting authority specified that it can be requested after one year has elapsed from the time an application is submitted. This usurping of state control does not require that the state process was flawed in any respect. Power companies can request FERC backstop oversight simply because they have no patience for the traditional lawful and appropriate state processes.

There has not been an adequate consideration of specific alternatives to new transmission lines, including a full range of demand management and peak demand reduction measures; energy conservation measures; and alternative transmission technologies and upgrades. Transmission expansion is not the only solution; conservation, energy efficiency, and demand management are viable resources. California has demonstrated the feasibility of demand side management resources (essentially, conservation). A comprehensive assessment of the potential of lower cost, non-polluting demand resource options is needed. It is the Department of Energy's responsibility to foster an energy policy that will be environmentally responsible. Smart grid technology, demand management, upgrading existing infrastructure, and conservation can provide time for our nation to move to renewable, clean, and distributed generation.

There has not been an assessment of impacts on the environment, a requirement by the National Environmental Policy Act which is reasonable given the demonstrated potential impacts on historic, scenic, natural, and cultural resources in the proposed corridor. Once a corridor is designated it will be too late to protect Virginia's treasured landscape. Establishing transmission corridors, clear cutting thousands of acres of privately owned land for transmissions lines, and fostering the use of coal is unnecessary.

The Department of Energy (DOE) has pandered to energy companies and their representatives. Over a one-year period, the DOE held over 60 outreach meetings within the energy industry, yet offers approximately 49 million citizens a handful of public meetings and a mere 60 days of input. On March 29, 2006, the DOE held a technical conference in Des Plaines, Illinois, with panelists and attendees insulated in an interactive setting that included various question and answer sessions. On March 15, 2007, the DOE held a public meeting in Arlington, Virginia, where citizens were allotted a mere two minutes each to bring their concerns before a stoic panel of three. The entire process has desecrated the values of our democracy.

I encourage you to disapprove of 2007-OE-01. As a homeowner in the area that would potentially be affected by this move, I felt that the quality of life that I've gained by moving out further in the metropolitan area would be greatly reduced.

The power towers are a horrible eye-sight and furthermore, what kind of effect would these lines have on the life and safety of our children, the foods we eat and how we live.

Up until this point, Dominion Power has failed to provide any proof of how these power lines would benefit those users in the Prince William/Haymarket/Gainesville area. Instead, the lines would pass through the area and we'd have to deal with the mess.

Please, please, please take the opinions of us property owners into consideration.

Thank you,

Wayne J. Ernst

I am appalled that you would consider giving the power companies eminent domain over one of our national natural treasures. The construction of such corridors should involve the input of the local communities. Additionally, given the choice between ugly transmission lines marring our landscape and learning to conserve more energy, I think many consumers will make the choice to conserve. That is not in the power companies' profit interest, so they aren't promoting that option.

Please do not grant them something they do not have the moral authority or conscience to execute well.

Hi,

Our national treasures like trails and park areas are the only things we have left to take us back to the past and enjoy unspoiled areas by technology. Beggin you please do not traverse these areas with lines that remind us how we can trample down areas with no regards to spoiling them.
